

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An electronic method for locating travel products for a user including requesting personal information from a user, receiving personal information from a user, requesting desired travel product attributes from a user, receiving desired travel product attributes from a user, searching a database of travel products to select desired travel products using desired travel product attributes received from a user, and reporting travel products selected to a user. The method also includes prompting a user to receive future notice about a travel product, receiving a request for future notice about a travel product from a user, searching through a database of travel products after a predetermined time interval to select desired travel products using desired travel product attributes received from a user, and notifying a user of selected travel products.

MAK/mak

DAA PAS412851.1--*-2/20/02 3 40 PM

10081593-022002